

Parking Instructions

Parking for people visiting the Hall of Justice is located on Allegan Street (across from the north side of the Michigan Library and Historical Center (MLHC), southeast of the Hall of Justice, and east of the Veteran's Memorial Park).

When entering the lot, turn left into the unattended lot where pushing a button will produce a parking entry ticket. Once the ticket is in hand, proceed and park in any available spot. When leaving, visitors may make payment (the rate is $1.00/hour, with a daily maximum of $8.00) from their vehicles at the pay-in-lane machine as they exit the HOJ visitor lot or in person at the south entrance to the MLHC. Insert the entry ticket into the machine and your parking fee will be calculated. The pay-in-lane machine will only accept cash and dispenses change in $1.00 coin and nickels only. The pay station in the MLHC will only accept cash and dispenses change in $5.00 bills, $1.00 coin, and nickels. The machines cannot calculate a parking fee without an entry ticket. Customers that lose their entry ticket will be charged $8.00 at the machine. To avoid the full charge, customers can go to the DMB Customer Service Center in the Hannah Building (first building east of the parking lot) on the first floor and they will be charged as if they arrived at 7:00 a.m. If a visitor parks in the lot and later realizes they have no cash, they must also go to the DMB Customer Service Center to make payment (they accept personal checks and credit/debit cards).
