High school students can experience ‘Moot Court’ through Supreme Court Learning Center summer program

LANSING, MI, March 11, 2014 – This summer, high school students can experience what it’s like to argue a case before the Michigan Supreme Court, thanks to a program being offered by the Court’s Learning Center.

Rachael Drenovsky, the Learning Center’s coordinator, explained the program features participation in a “moot court,” in which participants prepare and argue a case.

“The goal is to have the participants experience what it’s like to argue a case before the Michigan Supreme Court,” she said. “They not only learn about the legal system, but also sharpen the skills a good lawyer needs: reasoning, writing, and oral presentation.”

The moot court case will examine whether police may conduct the warrantless search of a cell phone at the time of arrest. Participants will discuss what protections the Fourth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution offer and what rules should apply to 21st-century technology.

Participants will meet and work with attorneys and other legal professionals; presenters will include members of the judiciary, including justices of the Michigan Supreme Court. The programs will be held at the Michigan Hall of Justice in Lansing.

“Exploring Careers in the Law,” is open to students entering grades 10 through 12 in fall 2014 and 2014 graduates. Participants meet July 21 – 25 from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. each day. The application deadline is May 30, 2014. The registration fee is a $75 donation to the Michigan Supreme Court Historical Society Learning Center Fund.

Registration is limited to 22 participants, selected on a first-come, first-served basis. Contact Rachael L. Drenovsky at 517-373-5027 or drenovskyr@courts.mi.gov. Applications and additional information are available at http://courts.mi.gov/education/learning-center/Documents/MootCtApp2014.pdf.
