INTRODUCTION

Congratulations! You are, or becoming ready to become, an adult in the greatest nation in world history. Like it or not, you are responsible and accountable for your actions. In addition, the fate of the nation rests in your hands. You will make a difference - for good or ill. The choice is yours.

The purpose of this work is to give you a “bird’s eye view” of some key topics that you will face as an adult and citizen. Part I addresses the form and spirit of our government, as well as your rights and duties that flow from our free society. Part II addresses some very specific areas of the law that will have a major effect on how you live your life, including crimes, contracts, and civil rights.

“You and the Law” is a vast topic - much bigger than any single publication can fully cover. Although this work is necessarily limited, it should provide you some indispensable guidance on how to live as an engaged, contributing citizen in our constitutional republic.¹

THE IMPORTANCE OF CIVIC ENGAGEMENT & INDIVIDUAL RESPONSIBILITY

In America, we believe that the people should self-govern (i.e., that we are sovereign). We don’t have kings, dictators, military juntas, clerics, or other oppressive regimes lording over us. We believe that each person has a divine spark, and that we can do wonderful things with our potential. We are responsible for our own destiny. That places great responsibility and accountability on each of us to contribute to our society.

Some believe that civic participation is only about voting. Hogwash. Voting is just the beginning. As a truly engaged citizen, you need to understand the Declaration of Independence and the Michigan and federal Constitutions, and then proactively engage in the public sphere through any of a wide array of methods: writing commentaries, assisting political candidates, engaging in ballot proposals, supporting political parties, gathering petitions, speaking on a soapbox, contributing to social media, attending rallies, advocating for policy reforms, marching in parades, and a host of other means. If you are not proactive, others will be. Then your fate will be determined by others - some whom may not have your best interests in mind.

You also need to be a good person for the sake of yourself and your family. At the heart of America is the individual. Although there is no denying that family, nonprofit organizations, businesses, the military, the government, faith, community, groups, and other organizations are vital to the health of our civic society, in the end you must be accountable for your own actions - and following the law. You can move forward by accepting that responsibility and doing the best you can by living up to your potential. You can be a contributing member to society and live a tremendous life. Or you may end up in a cage. Choose the right path.

Noah Webster, the famous publisher of A Compendious Dictionary of the English Language, fittingly observed in an article advocating for the adoption of the U.S. Constitution: “in no country, have the body of the people such knowledge of the rights of men and principles of governments. This knowledge, joined with a keen sense of liberty and watchful jealousy, will guard our constitutions, and awaken the people to an instantaneous resistance of encroachments.” In more modern language, we all have a responsibility to safeguard our liberties and freedoms. To do that, we need to understand the Constitution and the criminal law. Unfortunately, that knowledge, keen sense of liberty, and watchful jealousy appear to be disappearing. Time to turn back the tide. Don't be a victim or let our freedoms slip through your hands. Learn about and protect your freedoms and liberties.

THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE & OUR FIRST PRINCIPLES

To understand our foundations and your vital role in America, we must begin at the beginning. Unlike most countries in world history, America has a definitive birth day - it was born with the approval of a resolution of independence passed by the Second Continental Congress on July 2, 1776. Two days later, the same body passed the Declaration of Independence - explaining to a “candid world” the reasons behind the separation with the British Empire. Perhaps the most eloquent political message ever penned by the hands of men, the second paragraph of the Declaration lays out the First Principles upon which our nation was founded:

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. That whenever any form of government becomes destructive to these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness.

These words from the Declaration of Independence were revolutionary in 1776 and remain revolutionary today. They explain the foundational self-evident basic truths - the First Principles - upon which the revolutionary generation united to rebel against the British. Thomas Jefferson, the primary draftsman of the Declaration, noted that the Declaration did not create “any new principles, or new argument” Instead, “it was intended to be an expression of the American mind”

Distilled in more modern language, the First Principles identified in the Declaration justifying the American Revolution and upon which the new nation was built are:

- ☆ Unalienable rights (everyone is naturally endowed by their Creator and Nature with certain rights that cannot be taken away by others – that is your rights are not given to you by government, but are born within you and can never be taken away);
- ☆ Equality (all persons are created equal and should be treated equally under the law – that is, regardless of differences in race, gender, ethnic group, class, wealth, and mental and physical attributes, we should all be treated the same under the law);
- ☆ The Social Compact (governments are instituted by the people and derive their just powers from the consent of the governed – that is, to protect our unalienable rights, we have created governments - and those governments are only legitimate if they represent of the will of the people and protect our unalienable rights);
- ☆ Limited government (government is instituted to protect the unalienable rights of the people and should be limited in its authority and power to fulfill that purpose – that is, the government is not all powerful; the government has internal limits on its power (for example, checks and balances, separation of powers, and federalism) and external limits on its power (for example, voting, criminal due process, and the freedoms of religion, speech, press, and association);

- ☆ The Rule of Law (the law governs everyone, including those in government and the people – that is, those in power cannot simply do what they want, but must follow the law - and the people are also bound by the law); and
- ☆ The Right to Alter or Abolish an Oppressive Government (the people have the right to reform the government - and even to abolish an oppressive government – that is, if the people are unhappy with the government, they can change it through elections and constitutional amendments, and if there is longstanding oppression, the people can abolish and establish a new government).

They are “principles” because they are, as the dictionary states, “A basic truth, law or assumption . . . A rule or standard . . . Moral or ethical standards or judgment as a whole.”² They are “First” because they “Come[] before all others:” and “Rank[] above all others in importance or quality.”³

There is no question that the Declaration of Independence and Constitution turned upside down the prevailing world order. For nearly all countries and nearly all times, governments were oppressive. The great mass of people did not have rights - they were lucky to have a few privileges dribbled out by their overlords. The people were not citizens, only subjects subservient to the ruling powers. There was no such thing as the Social Compact, just an oppressive government that imposed its will. For the most part, the idea of a government voluntarily limiting its scope of power (including internal and external checks) was rare and fleeting. Likewise, that the rule of law prevailed during most of history is a farce. Instead, rulers did what they wanted and could get away with it based on their personal desires and military might - not the law. And America was the first nation in world history to embrace the idea of reforming government by the consent of the people, or abolishing it when necessary to protect the people’s unalienable rights.

Despite these amazing accomplishments, many attack our Declaration of Independence and Constitution as antiquated, blood stained, elitist, disingenuous instruments of oppression in which they cannot see themselves represented. At the beginning, there was great truth to some of this critique. Undoubtedly, although many in the country were happy and prosperous, at its birth America, for many, was in hypocritical, open violation of these First Principles. Slavery, oppression of women, and discrimination on the basis of race, gender, ethnicity, property ownership, and religion were rampant. We should not gloss over the stains of the past.

On the other hand, those who fought (and continue to fight) for emancipation, woman's suffrage, and civil rights drew upon the wellspring of the First Principles to challenge the hypocrisy. Martin Luther King Jr., Frederick Douglass, Susan B. Anthony, Elizabeth Cady Stanton and many others pointed to the Declaration of Independence and demanded that its eloquent words not be a broken promise. They embraced the Declaration and ensured, with great effort, sacrifice, and controversy, that the country moved decisively in the direction of freedom and equality. Still, the struggle for living up to the ideals of the First Principles is hardly over. Where this journey leads - will in large measure - be determined by you.

THE FEDERAL & MICHIGAN CONSTITUTIONS

Once we won independence, we went about the work of establishing federal and State Constitutions. The Constitutions put into practice the founding First Principles. Because the federal government and each State has a constitution, we all live under two constitutions. Few people understand the U.S. Constitution well, and only a tiny number understand their own State constitution. In fact, that people even think of their State Constitution when they hear the word "Constitution" is highly unlikely.

If you wish to remain free, you must be informed and an active participant in our system of government. And to do that you need to understand both Constitutions. At the very least, you need to understand the basic structure and operations of them. Otherwise, you are throwing away your vote and won't be able to meaningfully be involved in politics. Although they are far from perfect (nothing made by the hands of men and women is), there are ample opportunities for you to participate in the political process and to fight for your rights. But you can't do that when you are ignorant. Learn about our Constitutions. In fact, since amendments to the State and federal Constitutions are possible, you can even improve them – but only if you defend them.

To best understand our Constitutions, one interesting and helpful way is to compare and contrast them. Accordingly, this work will review the basic outlines of our Constitutions to highlight their similarities and surprising differences.⁴

Predecessors

The U.S. Constitution was preceded by the Articles of Confederation and Perpetual Union, which was drafted by the Second Continental Congress in 1777 and effective in 1781. The current Michigan Constitution was preceded by the Northwest Ordinance, Michigan Constitution of 1835, Michigan Constitution of 1850, and Michigan Constitution of 1908.

Drafting Process

The U.S. Constitution was drafted at a constitutional convention held in Philadelphia during the summer of 1787. Each state appointed its own delegates. Although there were 55 delegates, each state's delegation counted as only one vote. The majority of each state's delegation would determine the vote of the state (i.e., if a delegation of three members split 2-1 in favor of a measure, that state's single vote would be cast in favor of the measure). George Washington presided over the federal convention.

The current Michigan Constitution was drafted at a constitutional convention held in Lansing from October 1961 to August 1962. The Michigan delegates were elected in a primary election held in July 1961. A delegate was chosen from each of the then-existing 110 state House of Representative districts and 34 state Senate districts. Each delegate voted at the Michigan convention on the principle of one person, one vote. Former American Motors Company president and future governor George Romney (and father of now Senator Mitt Romney) was the chairman of the Michigan Convention.

Length

The U.S. Constitution is 4,543 words. The Michigan Constitution dwarfs the United States document with over 31,000 words.

Ratification

The U.S. Constitution required 9 of the 13 original States to ratify the document before it became effective. Each State held a ratification convention to debate the merits, and each had a separate process for selecting the delegates to the convention. There was a vigorous debate about whether the federal Constitution should be adopted. Approval in several States such as Massachusetts, New York and Virginia, was very close. Those supporting ratification were dubbed the “Federalists,” and those opposed, the “Anti-Federalists.” Both sides wrote voluminously in the papers and pamphlets of the day. The Federalist Papers (written by James Madison, Alexander Hamilton, and John Jay) were a series of brilliant newspaper articles published in New York and elsewhere advocating ratification. New Hampshire sealed the deal when it ratified the U.S. Constitution on June 21, 1788. The United States Constitution went into effect in March 1789. Rhode Island delayed its ratification until May 1790.

Adoption of the Michigan Constitution was a much closer call. After a robust campaign, the Michigan Constitution was submitted to a vote of the people of Michigan on April Fool’s Day (April 1), 1963, and adopted by the very slim margin of 810,860 to 803,436. Unlike the U.S. Constitution, at the time of the election, the proposed draft constitution was accompanied at the ballot box with an Address to the People that provided commentary about the purpose behind particular provisions of the proposed constitution. In addition, the constitutional convention produced a widely distributed 109-page booklet, “What the Proposed New State Constitution Means to You: A Report to the People of Michigan by Their Elected Delegates to the Constitutional Convention of 1961-62” for consideration by the voters.

Age

The U.S. Constitution was drafted in 1787 and ratified in 1789. The current Michigan Constitution was drafted in 1961 and adopted in 1963.

Preamble

The United States Constitution has a world-famous preamble that explains the reason for the Constitution:

We the People of the United States, in Order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America.

This Preamble explains the purposes of the Constitution, including improving, securing or ensuring the social compact, justice, peace, common defense, common welfare, and liberty.

The Preamble to the Michigan Constitution of 1963 echoes but materially differs from that of the United States:

We, the people of the State of Michigan, grateful to Almighty God for the blessings of freedom, and earnestly desiring to secure these blessings undiminished to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this constitution.

As the text reveals, the Michigan Constitution invokes the Creator expressly, declares gratitude, and centers on the “blessings of liberty.” The U.S. Constitution does not expressly invoke God or promulgate gratitude. The Michigan Constitution omits most of the purposes enumerated for the U.S. Constitution other than securing liberty and attempting to provide those blessings to the people and their posterity.

Organization of Government & Separation of Powers

Each Constitution provides for three branches of government: legislative, executive, and judicial.⁵ Article III, Section 2 of the Michigan Constitution specifically provides, “The powers of government are divided into three branches: legislative, executive and judicial. No person exercising powers of one branch shall exercise powers properly belonging to another branch except as expressly provided in this constitution.”

The U.S. Constitution does not have text explaining that it has three branches or a separation of powers - it just does. However, Article 1, Section 6 of the U.S. Constitution prohibits any member of Congress from being appointed to “any civil Office created under the Authority of the United States”

Legislative Branch

Each Constitution provides for a House of Representatives and a Senate.⁶ Under each Constitution, members of the House of Representatives are elected for two-year terms.⁷ United States Senators serve six-year terms and one-third of the Senate is elected during each election cycle (i.e., every two years).⁸ Michigan Senators serve four-year terms and all are elected at once during the same year as the election for the governor.⁹ Michigan legislators can serve a lifetime maximum of three terms (six years total) in the House of Representatives and two terms (eight years total) in the Senate.¹⁰ No term limits exist in the U.S. Constitution.

To be a member of the U.S. House of Representatives, the representative must be at least 25 years old, a citizen of the United States for at least seven years, and an inhabitant of the State in which he is elected.¹¹ The U.S. Constitution does not provide a set number of representatives, only that there must no less than 30,000 citizens represented by each representative.¹² The total number of U.S. representatives is determined by Congress, based proportionally on population – subject to the caveat that each State must have at least one representative.¹³ United States Senators must be at least 30 years old, a citizen for nine years, and a resident of the State he or she represents. United States Senators are elected on a statewide basis, with each State having two senators.¹⁴

In Michigan, “Each senator and representative must be a citizen of the United States, at least 21 years of age, and an elector of the district he represents.”¹⁵ Michigan Senate and House districts are both determined by population.¹⁶ In addition, in Michigan “No person who has been convicted of subversion or who has within the preceding 20 years been convicted of a felony involving a breach of public trust shall be eligible for either house of the legislature.”¹⁷ The U.S. Constitution has no such bar. The legislative process in Michigan is hemmed in by title, object, and other legislative requirements and prohibitions.¹⁸

Executive Branch

The executive power of the United States is vested in the President who is elected pursuant to the electoral college.¹⁹ The electors of each state are chosen by a method of selection determined by the State legislature. Each elector has two votes, one each for President and Vice President (who run as a slate).²⁰ The President and Vice President each serve four-year terms, and are limited to two full terms.²¹ The Vice President also serves as the President of the Senate, and has no vote unless there is a tie.²² No other federal executive offices are addressed in the U.S. Constitution. To be President, a person must be a natural-born citizen, at least 35 years old, and have been a resident in the United States for at least 14 years.²³ The President is, among other things, the commander in chief of the armed forces.²⁴ He or she has the power to grant reprieves and pardons (except for cases of impeachment), make treaties (subject to a two-thirds approval of the Senate), and appoint federal judges (subject to the advice and consent of the Senate).²⁵ He or she has the duty to ensure that the laws are faithfully executed.²⁶

The executive power of the State of Michigan is vested in the Governor.²⁷ The Governor and Lieutenant Governor serve four-year terms, with a maximum of two terms.²⁸ The Governor is elected in the general election of alternate even-numbered years.²⁹ Candidates for Lieutenant Governor are nominated by party conventions.³⁰ “Candidates for Governor and Lieutenant Governor run as a slate.”³¹ The Governor supervises each “principal department ... unless otherwise provided by” the Constitution.³² The Governor is also to “take care that the laws be faithfully executed.”³³ Furthermore, the Michigan Constitution has a negative advice and consent clause – any gubernatorial appointments take effect unless a majority of the State Senate votes to disapprove the appointment.³⁴

The Governor has the authority to remove or suspend “any elective or appointive state officer, except legislative or judicial,” for “gross negligence of duty or for corrupt conduct in office, or for any other misfeasance or malfeasance therein”³⁵ Like the President, the Governor is the commander in chief of the armed forces.³⁶ He or she also has the authority to grant “reprieves, commutations and pardons for all offenses, except in cases of impeachment,” but that power is subject to the procedures and regulations provided by law.³⁷ The Governor has the duty to submit to the Legislature a balanced budget and appropriation bills.³⁸ Like the Vice President, the Lieutenant Governor is President of the Senate, without a vote except in cases of a tie.³⁹ To be Governor or Lieutenant Governor, a person must be 30 years old and have been a voter in the state for the four years “next preceding his election.”⁴⁰ The Attorney General and Secretary of State are likewise elected for four-year terms at the same time as the Governor, with a maximum of two terms.⁴¹ Like the Lieutenant Governor, the Attorney General and Secretary of State are nominated at state party conventions.⁴²

Unlike the U.S. Constitution, the Michigan Constitution addresses in detail the administrative state run by the Governor. For example, there must not be more than “20 principal departments. They shall be grouped as far as practicable according to major purposes.”⁴³ In addition, unless legislatively vetoed, the Governor has full authority to reorganize the executive branch via executive order.⁴⁴

The Michigan Constitution also establishes a statewide elected state board of education;⁴⁵ elected statewide boards for Wayne State University, the University of Michigan, and Michigan State University;⁴⁶ an appointed civil rights commission;⁴⁷ an appointed state transportation commission;⁴⁸ a Michigan nongame fish and wildlife trust fund;⁴⁹ a Michigan game and fish protection fund;⁵⁰ a Michigan conservation and recreation legacy fund;⁵¹ a Michigan veterans trust fund;⁵² and a Michigan natural resources trust fund.⁵³

Judicial Branch

The judicial power of the United States is vested in “one supreme Court, and in such inferior Courts as the Congress may from time to time ordain and establish.”⁵⁴ All federal judges have life terms, subject to being in “good Behavior.”⁵⁵ The jurisdiction of the federal courts includes all cases arising under the U.S. Constitution, federal law, treaties, foreign relations, admiralty and maritime, and controversies between the States.⁵⁶ The number of Supreme Court Justices is set by Congress.⁵⁷ In fact, all federal courts other than the Supreme Court are creatures of congressional legislation.⁵⁸

Michigan has “one court of justice” that is composed of a Supreme Court, a Court of Appeals, the Circuit Courts, Probate Courts, and other “courts of limited jurisdiction that the legislature may establish by two-thirds vote of the members elected to and serving in each house.”⁵⁹

The Michigan Supreme Court has seven members, serving eight-year terms with staggered elections.⁶⁰ The Supreme Court is nonpartisan, and “Nominations for justices of the supreme court shall be in a manner prescribed by law.”⁶¹ However, an incumbent may be placed on the ballot simply by filing an affidavit of candidacy.⁶² The Supreme Court chooses its own chief justice, and he or she “shall perform duties required by the court.”⁶³ The Supreme Court must appoint “an administrator of the courts and other assistants of the supreme court as may be necessary to aid in the administration of the courts of this state.”⁶⁴ The Supreme Court possesses supervises the lower courts, and hears appeals as it determines.⁶⁵ The Supreme Court is also in charge of the “practice and procedure in all courts of this state.”⁶⁶ Although originally the Supreme Court did not have “the power to remove a judge,”⁶⁷ it now may do so because of a constitutional amendment that created a judicial tenure commission, and the Court can remove a judge through those proceedings.⁶⁸ Decisions of the Supreme Court, including dissenting Justices, “shall be in writing and shall contain a concise statement of the facts and reasons for each decision and reasons”⁶⁹

The Michigan Court of Appeals has the number of judges as determined by law.⁷⁰ Court of Appeals judges serve six-year terms, elected in staggered terms.⁷¹ They are elected in nonpartisan elections “from districts drawn on county lines and as nearly as possible of equal population”⁷² The jurisdiction of the Court of Appeals is determined by law.⁷³

Circuit Courts are established along county lines, with a minimum of one judge per circuit.⁷⁴ Circuit Courts must conduct sessions at least four times a year, and the number of judges for each circuit is established by law.⁷⁵ Circuit court judges are nominated and elected in staggered (within each circuit) non-partisan elections for six-year terms, and must live in the circuit to which they are elected.⁷⁶ Circuit Courts have “original jurisdiction in all matters not prohibited by law” and “appellate jurisdiction from all inferior courts and tribunals except as otherwise provided by law”⁷⁷ Circuit Courts may also supervise lower courts as empowered by the Supreme Court.⁷⁸

Probate Courts are also established and follow the same elective and qualification procedures as Circuit Court judges.⁷⁹

To serve as a judge at all, an individual must have been admitted to practice law for at least five years, and cannot be elected or appointed after reaching 70 years old.⁸⁰ Judges are also ineligible to be nominated or run for a nonjudicial office until they have been out of a judgeship for at least one year.⁸¹

Initiative & Referendum

The Michigan Constitution provides Michigan voters a direct channel to enact or reject legislation.⁸² The Constitution provides two such channels. First, the “initiative” allows the people to propose laws. Second, the “referendum” allows the people to reject laws passed by the Legislature. Initiatives and referendums require petitions be signed by voters equal to at least 8 percent of the voters for Governor in the last general election.

With regard to an initiative, before going to the people for a vote, the Legislature has 40 session days to approve it. If the Legislature approves the initiative in that time, it comes law and does not go on the ballot. Any initiative that is not approved by the Legislature is sent to the voters on the next general election ballot for approval or rejection. A majority of voters can approve or reject the initiative. If it is approved, it becomes law. No matter what, however, an initiative cannot be passed that the Michigan Legislature does not have the power to enact.

With regard to a referendum, laws passed by the Legislature can be subject to a vote of the people. Any such laws go before the voters at the next general election, and if a majority of voters reject a law subject to a referendum, it fails to become law. Appropriations bills are exempt from the referendum.

Any law approved via referendum or initiative takes effect without the signature of the Governor. Moreover, they may not be amended unless three-quarters of both the Michigan Senate and Michigan House approve. If two such laws conflict, the one receiving the most votes prevails.

Under the U.S. Constitution, the people are locked out of any direct legislative role - there is no provision for initiative or referendum.

Recalls

The Michigan Constitution provides that Legislature must pass allows allowing elected officers, other than judges of record, to be subject to recall.⁸³ A recall occurs when a majority of voters approve removing an elected official. The filing of a petition of electors of at least 25% of those who voted for the Governor in the last election in the target official's district places the official on the ballot. There is a requirement that the petition provide a "statement of reasons or grounds" for the recall, and whether those reasons or grounds are sufficient cannot be reviewed by the courts.

The U.S. Constitution does not include recalls.

Local Government

The Michigan Constitution addresses the respective powers, immunities, and governance of counties,⁸⁴ townships,⁸⁵ cities⁸⁶ and villages.⁸⁷

The Michigan Constitution is so detailed that it requires that the bridging and damming of “navigable stream[s]” without the permission of supervisors of the local county,⁸⁸ and it permits county intervention in public utility services and rate proceedings.⁸⁹ Likewise, a township is not permitted to grant a public utility franchise “which is not subject to revocation at the will of the township, unless the proposition shall first have been approved by a majority of electors of such township voting thereon at a regular or special election.”⁹⁰

Other than ensuring a republican form of government at the state level,⁹¹ the United States Constitution is utterly silent with regard to local governance.

Governmental Authority

Enumerated Powers & Federalism

In almost all other countries, there is a national government - it has unlimited legislative and executive authority. Regional and local governments only have authority delegated to them by the national one. The United States is the opposite. The United States Constitution vests limited power in the federal government. In particular, the federal government only has authority to act in connection with powers expressly given to it. This doctrine is called “enumerated powers.” If the Constitution does not enumerate that the federal government has a particular power, then it doesn’t. Period.

The doctrine of enumerated powers is obvious by the way the Constitution is drafted, the intentions of the Founding Generation, and, for good measure, is expressly recognized in the 10th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Powers given to the federal government are those required to establish, unify, and defend our country. For example, national defense, international trade, foreign policy, patents, post office, and interstate commerce.⁹²

All powers not given to the federal government are retained by the states. At the heart of the authority of states is the “police power.” The police power is a broad authority of the states to protect the health, safety, and welfare of the people. The police power addresses such areas as marriage, health, disasters and pandemics, family law, most criminal laws, education, transportation, roads, public parks, and management of natural resources.

Finance & Taxation

The federal Constitution simply provides that the United States has the power “To lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts and excises, to pay the debts and provide for the common defense and general welfare of the United States” and “To borrow money on the credit of the United States.”⁹³

The Michigan Constitution takes painstaking care to address taxes and fiscal matters. In particular, Article IX, entitled Finance and Taxation, has 43 Sections. Provisions address, among other things, taxes for state expenses,⁹⁴ property taxation,⁹⁵ exemption from taxation for religious and educational nonprofit organizations,⁹⁶ income tax,⁹⁷ sales and use taxes,⁹⁸ fuel taxes,⁹⁹ taxes dedicated to schools,¹⁰⁰ short term state borrowing,¹⁰¹ payments from the State treasury,¹⁰² public financial records,¹⁰³ public pensions,¹⁰⁴ limitations on taxes,¹⁰⁵ limitations on revenue,¹⁰⁶ the creation of the Michigan natural resources trust fund,¹⁰⁷ tobacco taxes,¹⁰⁸ establishment of the Michigan veterans’ trust fund,¹⁰⁹ establishment of the Michigan conservation and recreation legacy fund,¹¹⁰ and the establishment of the Michigan game and fish protection fund.¹¹¹

Specific Police Powers

Education

No powers or duties regarding education are provided in the federal Constitution.

Article VIII of Michigan’s Constitution is dedicated to education. Section 1 of the Article incorporates a key phrase of the Northwest Ordinance: “Religion, morality and knowledge being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged.” Section 2 requires the Legislature to “maintain and support a system of free public elementary and secondary schools as defined by law,” and specifically provides that each school district shall provide “education to its pupils without discrimination as to religion, creed, race, color or national origin.” That Section also bans direct or indirect financial aid to nonpublic schools. Section 3 creates an 8 member, statewide elected State Board of Education and vests it with “Leadership and general supervision over all public education, including adult education and instructional programs in state institutions, except as to institutions of higher education granting baccalaureate degrees” Public higher education institutions are established by Section 4, and Section 5 provides for statewide elections for Wayne State University, the University of Michigan, and Michigan State University. The Legislature is mandated to establish and financially support public community and junior colleges.¹¹²

Transportation

The Michigan Constitution provides that the Legislature “may provide for the laying out, construction, improvement and maintenance of highways, bridges, culverts and airports by the state and the bounties and townships thereof; and may authorize counties to take charge and control of any highway within their limits for such purposes.”¹¹³

Protection of Unalienable Rights

With a few exceptions, the federal Constitution’s protection of unalienable rights is found in the Bill of Rights (the first 10 Amendments) and the Reconstruction Amendments (Amendments 13-15). The First Amendment prohibits the establishment of a state church, and guarantees the rights of the free exercise of religion, freedom of speech and press, and the freedoms to assemble and petition the government. The Second Amendment protects the right to bear arms, while the Third Amendment prohibits the quartering of troops. The Fourth - Eighth Amendments mostly protect the rights of criminal defendants or address rights in civil litigation, along with prohibiting the acquisition of property without a public purpose and just compensation. The Thirteenth Amendment bars slavery, the Fourteenth defines citizenship and ensures the States provide equal protection of laws and due process to their citizens, while the 15th Amendment guaranteed the right to vote for all men regardless of their race. The 19th Amendment provides the right to vote to all women, and the right to vote was expanded to 18 year olds in the 26th Amendment. Article I, Section 9 of the original, unamended Constitution also barred ex post facto laws, bills of attainder, and protected the ancient writ of habeas corpus.

The first Article of the Michigan Constitution is a Declaration of Rights. Section 1 of Article I provides that “All political power is inherent in the people. Government is instituted for their equal benefit, security and protection.” The Declaration of Rights is composed of 27 sections. Many of the sections provide similar or parallel provisions to the federal Bill of Rights and Reconstruction Amendments, including equal protection of the law;¹¹⁴ the right to peaceable assemble and petition the government;¹¹⁵ the protection of the free exercise of religion;¹¹⁶ the freedoms of speech and press;¹¹⁷ the right to bear arms;¹¹⁸ the prohibition of bills of attainder, ex post facto laws, and impairment of contracts;¹¹⁹ and the protection of jury trials.¹²⁰ Others are not found in the federal Constitution, such as the rights of crime victims;¹²¹ the definition of marriage;¹²² the prohibition of affirmative action programs in education;¹²³ and human embryo and embryonic stem cell research.¹²⁴ Michigan did not have to ban slavery since that stain on American history was never present in Michigan.

Amendments

To amend the U.S. Constitution, two-thirds of both houses of Congress must submit a proposal to the states, and three-quarters of the States must approve it.¹²⁵ Approximately 12,000 amendments have been proposed in Congress, and only 33 have gone to the States for consideration.¹²⁶ The U.S. Constitution has been successfully amended 27 times. Such amendments include the Bill of Rights,¹²⁷ the prohibition of slavery,¹²⁸ establishing equal protection and due process for all people against the States,¹²⁹ voting rights for African-Americans and women,¹³⁰ authorizing an income tax,¹³¹ altering United States Senate elections,¹³² and modifying presidential elections and succession procedures.¹³³

To amend the Michigan Constitution, citizens can propose an amendment via a ballot initiative when at least 10 percent of the total vote cast for all candidates for governor at the last preceding election sign a petition.¹³⁴

The Legislature can also propose an amendment if two-thirds of both houses vote to do so.¹³⁵ In either case, an amendment is approved by a majority vote of the people in a statewide election.¹³⁶ There have been 31 proposed amendments via ballot initiatives, and 43 via legislative resolutions.¹³⁷ Of those, 32 amendments have been approved and 42 rejected.¹³⁸ Approved amendments include establishing the Judicial Tenure Commission,¹³⁹ the creation of the State Officers Compensation Commission,¹⁴⁰ addressing the filling of judicial vacancies,¹⁴¹ prohibiting public funds to aid nonpublic schools and students,¹⁴² and authorizing lotteries.¹⁴³ Rejected amendments included attempts to lower the voting age to 18 (twice),¹⁴⁴ permitting a graduated income tax,¹⁴⁵ and permitting election of members of the Legislature to another State office during their term of office.¹⁴⁶

Constitutional Convention

A new U.S. constitutional convention can be called “on the Application of the Legislatures of two thirds of the several States,” and a new constitution may be adopted when three-quarters of the states approve the new constitution (either by constitutional conventions or by the state legislatures, as determined by Congress).¹⁴⁷ No successful movement to call for a convention has yet occurred, although a movement called the “Convention of the States” has obtained applications from 15 states (i.e., both houses of the State legislatures have approved it), with partial success in 8 others (one house has approved it), calling for a convention that would “limit the power and jurisdiction of the federal government, impose fiscal restraints, and place term limits on federal officials.”¹⁴⁸

The question of whether Michigan should hold a new constitutional convention is placed on the ballot every 16 years (beginning in 1978).¹⁴⁹ If a majority of voters agree, a constitutional convention will be held subject to certain procedures set forth in the current Constitution.¹⁵⁰ This process has yet to result in a call for a new convention since the enactment of the 1963 Constitution.

Conclusion

The differences between our two Constitutions are quite intense – revealing the origins and philosophies undergirding each. For example, the Michigan Constitution provides for direct action by the people in modifying their fundamental charter and laws, while the federal Constitution has no such mechanisms. The voters of the State of Michigan directly elect all nearly all state constitutional officers, while the federal system provides direct elections only of the Congress. Indeed, federal judges are appointed and have life tenure; Michigan judges are directly elected and may not run for re-election after the age of 70. Other than judges of record, all elected officials can be recalled in Michigan - not so in the federal system. Understanding their differences gives us a deeper appreciation for the value they provide and any potential imperfections. Simply put, the U.S. and Michigan Constitutions have a profound impact on our daily lives, significantly differ in scope and detail, and are well worth learning if we intend to preserve our liberties and freedoms.

CIVIL RIGHTS

Employment and Public Accommodations

Civil Rights - Elliott-Larsen Civil Rights Act (Public Act 453 of 1976, as amended (MCL 37.2101 et seq. and the Michigan Civil Rights Commission)

- Discrimination in employment, education, housing and other real estate, public accommodations, and public services is prohibited.
- Discrimination on the basis of religion, race, color, national origin, arrest record, genetic information, sex, age, height, weight, familial status and disability is prohibited.
- The Michigan Department of Civil Rights has the authority to accept complaints of discrimination.
- To legally discriminate on the basis of disability must be related to the person's ability to perform on the job or use facilities which cannot be reasonably altered.

Sexual Harassment

Sexual Harassment - Elliott-Larsen Civil Rights Act (Public Act 453 of 1976, as amended (MCL 37.2101 et seq. and the Michigan Civil Rights Commission)

- You may not make unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, other verbal or physical conduct, or communication of a sexual nature that is used as a term or condition to obtain employment, public accommodations or public services, education, or housing.

- Department of Homeland Security (DHS) and Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) consider schools a “sensitive location” and will not usually attempt apprehensions or enforcement actions in these areas (unless special circumstances arise).

FINANCE

Loans

- Research the different types of loans available for buying a home, for college, and other purposes before entering into any type of loan agreement. Federal student loans, for example, do not need to be paid back until after you are no longer enrolled in college or have dropped below half-time enrollment. All loans are different, however, so it is very important to do research on your own and talk to the lender about what is required from you.
- Link: <https://studentaid.ed.gov/sa/>

Credit Cards

- Not paying off your credit card can lead to bad credit.
- When you have bad credit:
 - Obtaining approval for a loan can be difficult.
 - Creditors may charge higher rates or put more restrictions on loans.
 - You may have difficulty renting an apartment because landlords will conduct background/credit checks.
 - You may have trouble obtaining a job because employers conduct background checks.
 - You may have difficulty entering into a cell-phone contract.
 - Bad credit can lead to receiving higher insurance premiums.
 - In general, your credit will be checked when you sign any contract that would require you to make monthly payments. The worse your credit, the more likely someone will decline to contract with you or make you pay more.
 - <https://www.moneycrashers.com/bad-credit-score-negative-effects>

Contracts

- Contracts can be written or oral/verbal,
 - Examples of contracts that generally must be in writing:
 - Sale of goods over $500
 - Sale of land
 - Lease lasting a year or more

- Contract that will last longer than a year
 - TIP: It is always better to write out a contract
- In general, to constitute a contract there must be:
 - An offer by one party to do something
 - Acceptance of that offer by a second party
 - Consideration must be given
 - Consideration is what one party will obtain from the other party for performing their duties in a contract (i.e., money to be paid for a service).
- When a contract is formed, each party has a right and a duty.
- Generally, if one of the parties fails to perform his/her duty when the time comes for performance, that party has “breached” his/her contract and the other party may sue that party for damages (i.e., monetary compensation).

Rental Contracts

Michigan Truth in Renting Act (MCL 554.633) - prohibited lease terms

A rental agreement cannot:

- Waive a tenant’s rights to the landlord providing a livable residence.
- Waive a tenant’s right to their security deposit.
- Discriminate based on religion, race, color, national origin, arrest record, genetic information, sex, age, height, weight, marital status and disability.
- Allow a landlord to take a security interest in a tenant’s personal property to assure payment.
- Permit a landlord to alter a lease agreement without the consent of the tenant.

YOU CAN'T AFFORD THIS

The following are examples of how a criminal defendant might be treated in Michigan's criminal justice system:⁴

Uttering and Publishing

- ☆ Crime: Nina was walking to her car after shopping at a grocery store when a man approached her and said he needed help depositing two checks worth a total of $1,026.57. The unnamed man told Nina that she could have a $300 cut of the money if she helped him out. Then the man asked Nina to get in his car, where his friend Tony was in the driver's seat. Tony drove Nina to a bank where she got out and deposited the first check worth $600. Upon arriving to the second bank, the police were alerted that someone with the same name as Nina had cashed a fraudulent check earlier that day. When the police showed up at the second bank, they arrested Nina.
- ☆ Sentence: Nina was convicted of uttering and publishing and received 2 years of probation only because she had no priors on her record.
- ☆ Costs: $130 in crime victim rights fees (CVR) + $68 in state costs + $60 in DNA testing fee + $300 attorney fees + $180 in probation supervision fees + restitution (in the amount of the check cashed, $600) = at least $1,338.

Larceny from a motor vehicle

- ☆ Crime: Jack and his friends were walking to the convenience store. On the way Jack noticed a Mercedes parked on the street. Jack pulled on the door handle to see if the car was unlocked and the door opened. He entered the car and stole a $2,090 Louis Vuitton purse, $143 Ray-Bans, and $50 cash.
- ☆ Sentence: Jack was convicted of larceny from a motor vehicle and received 2 years probation, 30 days in jail, and alcohol and drug testing.
- ☆ Costs: $130 in CVR + $68 in state costs + $60 in DNA testing fee + $300 attorney fees + $240 probation supervision fees + restitution ($2283 paid to the victim) = at least $3,081.

Home Invasion

- ☆ Crime: While walking by a house at night, Damien observed that the garage door of the house was left open. He snuck into the garage while the owners were home and asleep. He stole a $219 lawn mower and a $179 bike.
- ☆ Sentence: Damien was convicted of Home Invasion 1st Degree (because the garage is attached, and the owners were home) - he was sentenced to 18 months - 25 years in prison.
- ☆ Costs: $130 in CVR + $68 in state costs + $60 in DNA testing fees + $400 attorney fees + restitution ($398 paid to the victim) = at least $1,056.

Retail Fraud

⁴ The scenarios are not based on any actual cases. The real life consequences of criminal conduct vary depending on the crime, victim, prior criminal history, and innumerable other variables - but none of them are good!

- ☆ Crime: Maja was caught at a Walmart trying to return non-purchased goods (a $78 Google home mini speaker, $39.99 Roku, and a $56.59 Life proof FRE iPhone 6 case).
- ☆ Sentence: Maja was convicted of retail fraud and received 3 years probation, 60 days in jail, and an order to complete a residential substance abuse treatment program.
- ☆ Costs: $130 in CVR + $68 in state costs + $350 attorney fees + $360 probation supervision fees + restitution ($174.58 paid to the victim) = at least $1,082.58.

Assault with intent for great bodily harm

- ☆ Crime: Chad, who is an amateur MMA fighter, got into a bar fight with his classmate Dimitrius over a foosball disagreement while drunk. Chad really wanted to hurt Dimitrius and show off his fighting skills, so he punched Dimitrius and broke his nose.
- ☆ Sentence: Chad was convicted of assault with intent for great bodily harm less than murder, and received 9 months in jail and a 3-year probation term, including anger management, and alcohol and drug testing.
- ☆ Costs: $130 in CVR + $68 in state costs + $60 in DNA testing fees + $425 attorney fees + $360 probation supervision fees + restitution (full amount of victim's medical expenses for a broken nose, $1,500) = at least $2,543.

Criminal Sexual Conduct

- ☆ Crime: Mira was standing by the beer table at a house party waiting for her friend to return from the bathroom when Eric came over and started pestering her with questions. Mira tried to politely avoid conversation with Eric, but when she turned away, he grabbed her by the waist and pulled her closer to him. Mira started yelling at Eric, then he reached his hand up her skirt. Another girl at the party saw what was happening and came to the aid of Mira, helping her escape.
- ☆ Sentence: Eric was convicted of a CSC 4th (because she is over the age of 18). He was sentenced to a mandatory 5-year probation term; 6 months in jail; mandatory sex offender registration; mandatory sex offender treatment.
- ☆ Costs: $130 in CVR + $68 in state costs + $60 in DNA testing + $300 attorney fees + $600 probation supervision fees = at least $1,158.

Possession of Controlled Substances

- ☆ Crime: Jane was driving at night and drove through a stop sign. Jane was pulled over by K9 Officer Smiley. Due to Jane's odd response to his questions, Officer Smiley walked his K9, Rufus, around Jane's car. Rufus alerted Officer Smiley to drugs in the car. Upon a search of the vehicle, Officer Smiley found a cellophane bag of 5 grams of heroin, a metal spoon, and a syringe in the center counsel.
- ☆ Sentence: Jane was convicted of possession of a controlled substance and was sentenced to 90 days in jail; a 3-year probation term including residential substance abuse treatment after jail; and her license was suspended for 1 year.
- ☆ Costs: $130 in CVR + $68 in state costs + $500 attorney fees + $360 probation supervision fees = at least $1,058.

Gun Charges

- ☆ Crime: Kenneth opened his dad's gun safe and decided to take one of his pistols to show off to his friends. Later, during a traffic stop, the police found the gun in the glovebox.

- ☆ Sentence: Kenneth was convicted of concealed carrying of a weapon and received a 2-year probation and no jail term.
- ☆ Costs: $130 in CVR + $68 state costs + $60 in DNA testing fees + $300 attorney fees + $240 probation supervision fees = at least $798.

Armed Robbery

- ☆ Crime: Luke robbed a convenience store with a pistol openly displayed in his belt and stole $300 from the register.
- ☆ Crime: Courtney was the getaway driver for Luke.
- ☆ Sentence: Luke and Courtney were each sentenced to a minimum of 5 years in prison with a maximum of 50 years. Luke also received an additional mandatory sentence of 2 years for a felony firearm conviction because he used a gun while committing the felony, which will be served before the 5 - 50 years sentence.
- ☆ Costs Per Person: $130 in CVR + $68 state costs + $60 in DNA testing fees + $500 attorney fees + restitution ($300 paid to the victim, split between the two perpetrators) = at least $908 per person.

The value of being a good citizen = PRICELESS
